COMMON ACADEMIC SCHOLARSHIP EXAMINATION AT 13+

THEOLOGY, PHILOSOPHY AND RELIGION

(Revised April 2017 for first examination in Autumn 2019)

© Independent Schools Examinations Board 2017

INTRODUCTION

This syllabus comprises three elements: the study of theology through key biblical texts; philosophy through some significant philosophers and basic human questions about value and meaning; the study of religion in one or more world religion(s). It reflects the fact that the religious traditions of the United Kingdom are, in the main, Christian, while taking into account other principal religions represented in the United Kingdom. It thus meets the requirements of the 1944 Education Act (Section 28 where appropriate) and the 1966 Education Act (Section 375).

The Theology, Philosophy and Religion (TPR) syllabus provides a common body of knowledge which senior schools can assume when creating their theology, philosophy or religious studies courses. It is distinctive in that candidates study a full issues-based course, which requires the ability to read, interpret religious texts theologically, reason philosophically and understand religion in its contemporary setting. It also provides a coherent course, balanced in terms of breadth and depth, and offers all candidates, of any religious persuasion or none, the opportunity to demonstrate their attainment, irrespective of their gender or ethnic or social background.

AIMS

The syllabus aims at giving candidates the opportunity to:

- (i) study the foundational biblical texts of the Judeo-Christian tradition;
- (ii) develop philosophical skills to reason, argue and evaluate claims made by religious and non-religious belief systems
- (iii) acquire knowledge and develop understanding of the beliefs, values and traditions of one or more religion(s);
- (iv) consider the influence of the beliefs, values and traditions associated with one or more religion(s);

- (v) consider the theological, philosophical and religious responses to moral issues;
- (vi) identify, investigate and respond to fundamental questions of life raised by religion, philosophy and human experience, including questions about the meaning and purpose of life;
- (vii) develop skills relevant to the study of theology, philosophy and religion.

ASSESSMENT OBJECTIVES

Candidates must demonstrate their ability to:

- AO1 recall, select, organise, summarise and deploy knowledge of the syllabus content, including the content and distinctive concepts of theology, philosophy and religion and the specialist vocabulary according to each;
- AO2 describe, analyse and explain the relevance and application of theological, philosophical and religious ideas and practices and the issues arising from the study of each area;
- AO3 evaluate different responses to theological, philosophical and religious issues; including a personal response, using relevant evidence and argument, and appropriate language and terminology.

Although the assessment objectives are expressed separately, they are not wholly discrete.

FORMAT AND TEACHING STRATEGY

1. Format of the examination and choice of sections

Candidates answer one question from any two sections. As the examination is 60 minutes long, this gives candidates 30 minutes to plan and write carefully considered answers.

Teachers may choose which two sections to prepare their candidates for, depending on the type of course they wish to develop. Courses may comprise the following combinations:

- Theology and philosophy (sections 1 and 2)
- Theology and religion (sections 1 and 3)
- Philosophy and religion (sections 2 and 3)

There is no coursework although, by arrangement with senior schools, junior schools may wish to send on to senior schools coursework completed to supplement the examination.

2. Teaching strategy

Each of the three sections is divided into two topics. Although it is intended that both topics should be taught, in some cases a teacher may decide to focus on one of the two topics. As the examination paper provides two questions per topic area, candidates will still have a choice of questions, but the choice will be reduced.

Some teachers may decide to cover two topics but from different religions in Section 3. This has the advantage of covering a wider range of religious traditions but without requiring more teaching time.

The topics are arranged so that those choosing only to cover the first topic area in each section focus on more abstract ideas, whereas the second topic area deals with human and practical issues.

	Section 1 Theology	Section 2 Philosophy	Section 3 Religion
Topic 1	God's Relationship with the World	Great Thinkers and Their Ideas	Beliefs and Teachings
Topic 2	Human Responses to God	Ethics	Practices and Ceremonies

Candidates must answer one question from any two of the three Sections.

Candidates may restrict their study to either Topic 1 or Topic 2 in each Section if they wish (but this will reduce their choice of questions in the examination).

SCHOLARSHIP (CASE)

The Common Academic Scholarship Examination (CASE) is based on the TPR Syllabus and TPR Roman Catholicism. Candidates are expected to demonstrate wider knowledge, understanding and evaluative skills of either syllabus than candidates for Common Entrance.

The paper is 60 minutes in length and will consist of two sections with six questions in Section 1 and nine questions in Section 2. Candidates must answer one question from Section 1 and one question from Section 2.

Questions marked with an asterisk will be suitable for those who have been prepared for TPR Roman Catholicism.

Section 1: General (25 marks)

These questions will explore general theological and philosophical issues covered in the TPR syllabus and from TPR Roman Catholicism. Questions will require an essay-style response.

Six questions will be set; candidates must answer one question.

All questions in Section 1 require an essay response to a single question.

Section 2: Theology and Religion (25 marks)

Nine structured questions will be set covering Sections 1 and 3 of the TPR syllabus (Theology and Religion) and TPR Roman Catholicism. Candidates must answer one question.

Each question in Section 2 comprises three parts: part (a) knowledge; part (b) understanding and interpretation; part (c) evaluation and assessment.
