

Margaret (Maggie) Aderin-Pocock 1968- SPACE COMMUNICATION

Maggie Aderin-Pocock is a space scientist and science communicator. She has a PhD in mechanical engineering and now helps to design and build measuring instruments for space satellites, such as the Aeolus satellite, which will measure wind speeds on Earth. This is important the investigation of climate change. She has also worked to design the Gemini telescope in Chile, which analyses light from distant stars. Maggie is celebrated as a pioneer of science communication.

ISEB
Independent Schools
Examinations Board

Photo credit:
(inset) SkywalkerPL